As the pack started to gather nicely on a glorious Greenwith night, we had the Hare dribble something on the lines of "Run of the Year"

Hang on was this the illustrious "Nifty" spreading these rumours!

It certainly was, all in the same sentence as hurry up it's gonna get dark soon, & you lot have got a long way to go!

"Wondering if the pack should take torches" Mussed Nifty in his pre-run chalk talk. No, we answered, it's still daylight saving. How wrong we were!

The 6-pack of runners (following normal big lime arrows) walked swiftly off uphill ahead of the walkers (who followed a separate trail of tiny pussy shaped marks).

The runners were soon caught out with a nasty false trail. This was one of many checks on this run - which kept us together but slowed us down a lot.

One check was cunningly hidden under a parked van, By ELF we surmised! Lucky for him the van didn't take off mid check squashing him flat!

The sun set and twilight started.

After a couple of kilometres of street running, we reached some scenic dirt tracks along Cobbler Creek. But the light was quickly fading.

Another bit of street running up and down hills saw even more checks. Several were only two arrows away from the previous check!

At last we saw the pump house and knew where we were, but by then it was completely dark and only those few with torches could break checks and follow trail.

Eventually we reached the drink stop, where the walkers had already taken the best drinks.

Luckily Nifty had a bottle of old port with him.

We walked the last 700m home with drinks in hand in the dark, learning the hard way that we need to bring a torch from now on!

Cheers Chesty (guest run reporter)
