Run Details Run 2554 19 August 2024	Run Report - 17 Spring Hill Drive, Golden Grove	Hare – Bus Stop 17 runners & 2 dogs (yay!!)	Unfair and subjective Run Score
This week I was extremely hurt to hear Baxter remark during the circle; “Who the fk reads the Trash anyway??”. So, in this week’s edition, it’s open season on Baxter....  Our Hare had promised us ‘No Hills’. He was right. I would suggest that the topography of this week’s run would better be described as ‘mountainous’. Even the driveway had a slope of 45-degrees....and that was just the start. Up and up and up and up and up and up and up we ran, while the walkers went down (I knew they got up to no good). All the while Baxter was professing his secret love of Olive Oil (who, it has been proven also does not read the Trash). He said that he just could not keep it to himself anymore. The night was so quiet that apparently Bus Stop (who was still at this home awaiting the arrival of Budda) could hear us calling; “On-on” all along Cobbler Creek. I’m surprised that he couldn’t hear Baxter crying; “Olive, Olive, wherefore art thou Olive”. I have only been to Bus Stops house twice, and both times it was stormy. Both times as I arrived, I could see lightning all around and hear the rumbles of thunder in the distance. But, by some voodoo that only Bus Stop knows, both times we were lucky enough to miss the worst of it. We did get moist (everyone loves to get moist) but all was forgiven, as it was only as we approached the drink stop. A perfectly timed drink stop, as not only were the walkers there to greet us (minus McTaf who doesn’t like to get moist), but Bus Stop arrived not long afterwards with Budda. After Baxter had impressed us all with a beautiful rendition of ‘Kumbaya’, we all took off for home. As we left the drink stop, I ran past what I thought was one of those walking robot things from Star Wars. Turns out it was just Tight Lips with her fancy walking sticks.  This was a fun trail with tricky checks and many false trails to keep us all together (which is unfortunate, as we all really wanted to lose Baxter). We ran along creek beds, through paddocks (well, at least Ninja and I did, as we took a wrong turn) and through the beautiful suburbs of Golden Grove and it’s surrounds. It turned out to be a beautiful barmy night. Not as barmy as Baxter though. Now, you may have heard that a rabbit’s foot is considered lucky due to centuries-old superstitions and folklore – sicko’s if you ask me. A rabbit’s appendix is definitely NOT lucky. It certainly was not lucky for our own rabbit; Thumper, who found herself without hers after a visit to hospital during the week. At first, she thought that Baxter had poisoned her, but after a thorough police investigation, it was found that her appendix was the culprit. We all hope you get well soon.... except Baxter.... he doesn’t care. Bigus may be a great breakdancer, but Thumpers favourite dance is hip-hop.			10 (Everyone’s a Winner)

Our RANess tried his best yet again to make a short circle. It seems the pack LIKE cold Nosh.

Last week in the trash (for those of you who read it) I mentioned that I don't like the responsibility of having to be the judge each week for the 'Unfair and subjective Run Score'. It was pointed out to me during the week that 'I' write this Trash, so 'I' can do what the fk I want. Therefore, from now on, EVERYONE gets a 10 (except Baxter). Consider it a prize for participation. The only thing I will mark is if it was over an hour and if we had a drink stop. If you don't like it, Baxter has offered to take over as Trash writer.

Nosh was amazing. Apparently, this is to be expected from Mrs Bus Stop. In fact, Bigus was overheard asking to move in. For nibbles there were those awesome spicy peanut things with dips and Jatz. For mains; Prawn Crackers, chilli eggs, cucumber salad, Rendang curry chicken and yellow rice. For dessert we were treated to Fried Bananas (that had a fancy name) and honey ice-cream. Baxter said that he hated it and that he could cook better.
