12 Hashers - no dogs :(

I've always been a huge fan of Celine Dion. She is an amazing singer, even with her 'Stiff Person Syndrome', (I'll bet some of you Viagra users are jealous). However, I believe that this week she was upstaged. Although I'm sure it made Eric Carmen roll over in his grave; if you'd like to hear a cover rendition of Bigus Dickus singing "All By Myself", you'll have to click on the MP3 attachment in your email.

Thanks again to Chesty for sending me some notes to make up some st to write for you this week. I obviously had something better to do.....again. I'll make it out to Hash again eventually. Obviously a few of the AH3 crowd also 'had a life' this week, as I believe it was a smallish crowd. Indeed, it seems that our poor GM Bigus (who reappeared this week after taking a short break to spend much needed bonding time with his new puppy) had to walk alone.

Indeed, he was not impressed at all about arriving at the Drink Stop to find no Hashers....AND NO DRINKS!!!. In fact, although I wasn't there, I was kept entertained by his messenger videos of this lonesome adventures.

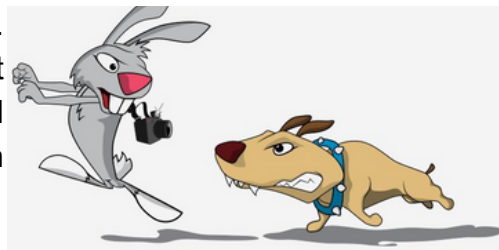

Chesty's notes: This week, when the Hashers arrived, McTaf still hadn't returned from setting the run. So they decided to call it a 'live hare run'. Betty Boop (co-hare) set them off, and off they went to see if we could catch the hare! There were lots of checks which the 8 or so runners mostly didn't mark (this displeased the lone walker Bigus, immensely - again, some very comical video messages.....if only Trash were in video form.....).

Luckily McTaf took pity on them on a hot night and the run was only 4km long. There were also 2 drink stops - the first was a Council water tap for humans & dogs and the second was a hash one where we finally caught the live hare! Unfortunately there was no real beer at this drink stop - just port with lots of lemonade or ginger beer, but on a hot night it was still very welcome. And hash drinks were only a short run away at the Cow Shed

There was a lively circle considering the low numbers. Moped drank out of one of his new shoes. Olive couldn't decide where next week's joint run will be. Chesty charged McTaf with being caught as a live hare - he didn't even realise he was one!

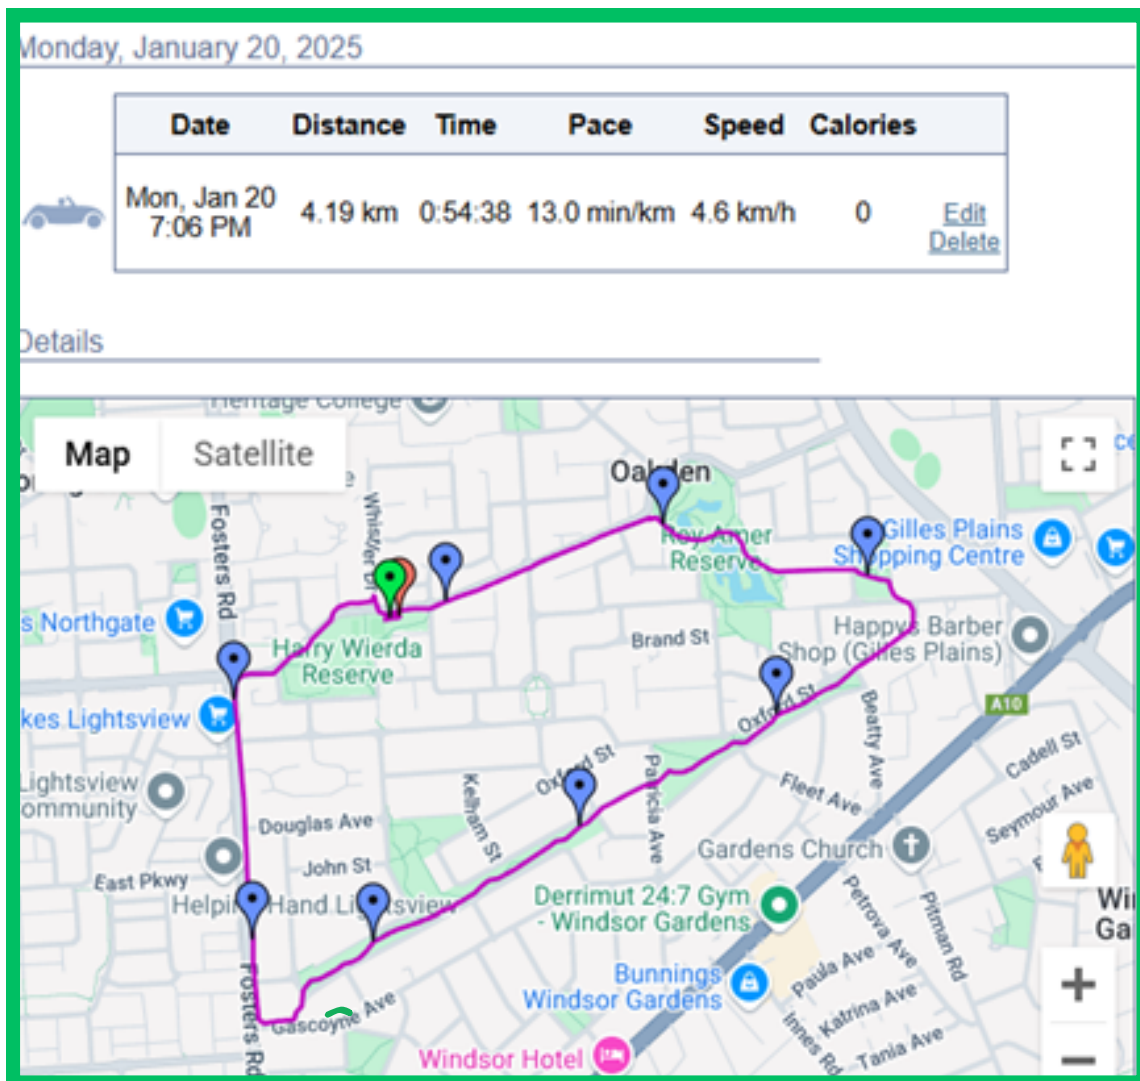

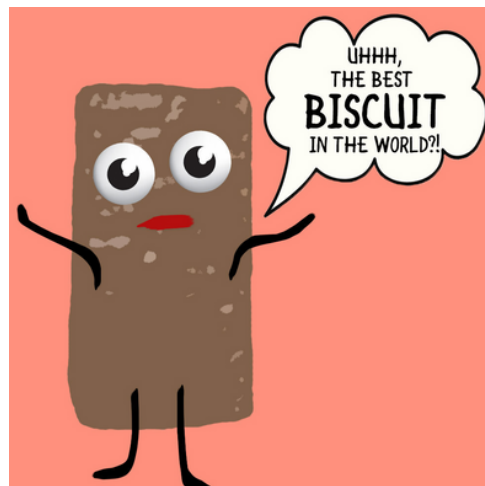

Elf turned up with a fresh haircut! Gone were his long grey locks! That was a pity as Chesty had a good song lined up for his hairy self.

The end of circle song was "The Old Irish State" which was well received and was requested for the St Pat's Day run on 17 March.

Nosh was assemble-yourself chicken & salad rolls with many, many extras, including Tabasco sauce. Dessert = Tim Tams.

Overall it was a fun night in a good, familiar venue - well done Hares! - Thanks Chesty. On On - £oo$e C$hang€
