Run 2536

When the briefing from the hare goes for more than a minute you know that things are unlikely to turn out well. As we hit the first check just off Michael Avenue the runners soon became fragmented, with half the pack finding home trail before reversing in the direction of the Clovie. The walkers however, seemed to be taking it all in their stride (pardon the pun), and were soon well ahead of the runners.

Just behind Spotlight the whole pack came together and tried to solve the riddle of the Runner/Walker split. After several laps around the park, the walkers exited right and the runners exited left, all confident that they were on the correct trail. We would all find out - sooner (for the runners) or later (for the walkers) that we had picked the wrong options.

Arriving at the drink stop earlier than expected the runners were treated to the vodka infused jelly bombs, complemented by the optional glass of muscat. Inspired by these rocket fuels, the runners headed off to follow the trail they should have been on in the first place, inspired by the thought of the walkers doing the whole bloody running trail!

Back at the hare's abode the runners were back in about 1 hour 10 minutes with the walkers still out there enjoying the trail. A few minutes later, the walkers came in cursing, having completed the full trail (as far as anyone could tell).

As we all enjoyed the well-earned beers, we could only wonder how two groups of highly intelligent, highly motivated runners and walkers all could end up taking the wrong turn at the walker/runner split.
